REPUBLICANS HOLD COUNTY CONVENTION

PRAISE COOLIDGE AND DAWES; SCORE UNFAITHFULS.

The Republican county convention held at the Court house Wednesday afternoon let it be understood in no uncertain terms that there will be no half way about it in this election and determined to use every effort to elect every candidate running on the Republican ticket. Chairman Melvin A. Bates says "Vote it straight." President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidates for president and vice president, received the unanimous endorsement of the convention.

All those who posed as Republicans or that held offices on Republican ticket and failed to support the policies of President Coolidge and the Republican administration, were bitterly denounced in the resolutions adopted. H. A. Bauman and Edwin S. Chalkers were elected delegates to the Republican state convention to be held in Detroit September 24th.

The convention was called to order by Chairman M. A. Bates, who was elected temporary chairman, and John J. Niederer was elected temporary secretary. After reading the official convention call and the selection of the above officers, on motion, the chairman appointed the following committees:

Organization and order of business—Charles Craven, Frederic H. A. Bauman and Ralph Hanna, Grayling. Resolutions—Geo. L. Alexander, Grayling; C. S. Barber, Frederic and Oliver B. Scott, South Branch. Credentials—Dell Weir and Emil Kraus, Grayling and Rufus Edmonds, Maple Forest.

As the committees submitted their reports each was unanimously adopted. The report that was presented by the committee on resolutions was as follows:

Resolutions.
Be it resolved that:
We, the Republicans of Crawford county heartily and fully believe that Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes are exceptionally well fitted to perform the duties of the high office to which they are respectively nominated.

We believe that no man in this broad country is possessed of higher qualities of mind and temperament and executive ability than Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes is well fitted in all respects to supplement Mr. Coolidge's efforts in governing this country.

We admire and praise their unwavering Republicanism; and we condemn all those who, whether calling themselves progressives or otherwise, fail to fully support President Coolidge and the Republican members of the National Senate and House of Representatives in the measures they propose.

Be it further resolved that the Republicans of Crawford county, in convention assembled, hereby unanimously endorse the candidacy of Chas. J. DeLand for secretary of state; O. B. Fuller for auditor general; A. J. Daugherty for attorney general, and John Brower for state treasurer, and that the delegates here elected to the state convention are fully to support them in said convention first, last and all the time.

Geo. L. Alexander, Oliver B. Scott, Chas. S. Barber, Melvin A. Bates and John J. Niederer, of Grayling were unanimously elected permanent chairman and secretary respectively of the Republican county committee until such time as their successors may be elected by the duly elected Republican primary candidates. In response Mr. Bates thanked the delegates for the honor conferred upon him and cited the fact that, although there is a large Republican majority in the county, three of the most important offices are filled by Democrats, and with exception of one term it has been many, many years since the Republicans have occupied all the county offices. He deplored this condition and urged the Republicans of the county to "vote straight" in the coming election.

Geo. L. Alexander advocated preliminary caucuses and the selection of the best and most likely candidates for places upon the primary ballot. Participation in the Republican primary election by members of other political parties has caused a lack of party unity and faithfulness, said the speaker. Further, he said, if any of the delegates present learned that there was any Republican who was not working in the interest of candidates running on opposition tickets, to "spot him" and report it to the officers of the county committee.

Just before the meeting closed the Chairman specially emphasized to the delegates the necessity of getting out a full vote, and he said again, "vote it straight."

There were 19 delegates present and every township was represented. Eight of the duly elected, candidate did not report.

FREDERIC M. P. CHURCH NEWS.
At the monthly business meeting held at the Methodist Protestant church of Frederic, Monday evening, Sept. 8, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Church Officers.
Board of Stewards: Mrs. Charles Craven, treasurer; C. S. Barber, Frank Munroe, Nellie Doremire, Mrs. Ed. McCracken.
Class leader: Mrs. Frank Munroe. Organist: Eva Hart.
Assistant organist: Mary Bender. Sunday School Officers.
Superintendent—C. S. Barber. Asst. superintendent—Mrs. Mary Forbush.
Secretary—Mrs. Nellie Doremire. Asst. secretary—Esther Barber. Librarians—Violet Munroe and Evelyn Barber.
Organist—Lola Craven. Asst. organist—Eva Hart.
Primary teacher—Florence Lodge. Junior teacher—Mrs. F. E. Hart.

MILK SUPPLY SHORT.

Henry Klein, the proprietor of the local creamery, says that he looks for a shortage in milk this winter. Cattle feed is scarce and the price will be high, and he believes that the farmers not having plenty of feed will plan on reducing their dairy rather than pay the long price for feeds. Mr. Klein says that he is planning on securing sufficient milk for his customers by making arrangements with Ogemaw County farms if necessary, and having it shipped in. He says he is receiving plenty of milk at the present time and will be able to supply the local needs. Beginning October 16th, they will begin the regular delivery around the city.

RUMORS ENDED BY STUDEBAKER

MOTOR CORP. ANNOUNCES LINE OF 15 NEW 1925 MODELS.

The persistent rumor that the Studebaker corporation was about to offer to the motoring world a number of new models was confirmed Sunday by the corporation's announcement made in Detroit and throughout the country. Though the Detroit auto row expected an early statement from Studebaker, the Sunday announcement caused general surprise, for it revealed that the company is presenting an entirely new line of 15 models, each model a complete refinement of the previous line.

Motorists are now offered by Studebaker the following new line: An entirely new type of open and closed car, a new medium weight six, a new 4-passenger closed car, optional 4-wheel brakes of remarkable design, genuine balloon tires—15 original and distinctive new bodies.

New Duplex Body.
A creation originated by Studebaker, which, when superadded to the present day open car is the new duplex body. This new Studebaker is an open car which can be converted magically in five seconds into a waterproof, snug and dry closed car of unsurpassing beauty. This new duplex Studebaker body is an outstanding sensation.

Studebaker announces an entirely new Standard Six which takes the place of the former light six and while it follows mechanically the general design of that car it has a new and larger motor, the entire car is larger, heavier and much more beautiful and has much more room. Of course the new duplex body entirely supercedes the former open touring car and open roadster bodies, not only in the new standard six but in the other two models, the special six and the big six.

Among the 15 bodies there is an entirely new four-passenger Victoria on the special six chassis. This is the cozy, compact, comfortable, four-passenger car with the driver's seat slightly forward and for the fourth passenger there is an auxiliary seat which folds under the dash when not in use.

Three New Berlins.
On each of its three chassis Studebaker provides a Berlin type of body, a five passenger on the Standard Six and Special Six and a seven-passenger on the Big Six. This type of car separates the driver's compartment from the passenger compartment with a sliding glass partition.

Three of the closed models in the Standard Six chassis induce an innovation in beautiful colors. The lower panels are in light gray and the upper panels are in dark gray. The separation is marked with parallel hair line red striping.

All of the Studebaker closed bodies are made by the Studebaker Corporation in its gigantic new body plant, the last of which costing ten million dollars, was finished in 1923.

Studebaker was among the very first of automobile manufacturers to introduce genuine balloon tires as regular equipment. Instead of the compromise on low pressure cord tires Studebaker has gone all the way and offered the public big, genuine balloon tires on "20" and "21" wheels.

Although the new Studebakers are regularly equipped with bigger and better two-wheel brakes than ever and with an entirely new emergency brake which operates on the propeller shaft, there is optional equipment offered in four-wheel brakes.

Four-Wheel Brakes.
The new Studebaker four-wheel brakes are not only of the hydraulic type, but hydraulic power and not by the driver's foot. Great braking force can be applied instantly and almost without effort by operating a valve which turns on the hydraulic power. Undoubtedly a tremendous amount of interest will be created by the new Studebaker four-wheel brakes.

Studebaker has made a great many minor changes, betterments and refinements in all the mechanical parts of its car.

Notably the engine now is in unit with the clutch and transmission, but even more important than that a new force-feed oiling system has been designed introducing an entirely new feature. The returning oil is strained before it goes back to the crankcase; thus the pump has the entire crankcase supply of oil strained and cleaned. There is no possibility of clogging screens or a lack of supply of oils for the highest speeds.

The entire amount of oil is pumped through the motor three times for every mile of travel under a varying pressure of 15 to 25 pounds, according to the speed.

Moved by Sales and supported by Hoesli that the petition of Walter Hanson for the construction of a sewer on Spruce street, described as follows: Near Block 11, Lot 9, Hadley's Second addition, be accepted and approved and referred to the committee on streets, to whom is granted authority to cause such improvement to be made under their supervision. Motion carried.

Alfred B. Hanson, post commander of the American Legion Post No. 106 and G. W. McCullough and George Burke of this board were duly appointed as a committee for arrangement of a program for the 12th day of September, 1924, which same is to be celebrated at National Defense Test day.

On motion duly supported, Board adjourned.

Chris Jensen, Village Clerk.

ED JUST COULDN'T WAIT.

Ed Houghton, well known Michigan logger up in the Grayling region, was elected supervisor of Grayling township, Crawford county, in the spring election. It happened that the day after election some workmen started work thinning out the trees on the courthouse grounds. Some citizen who observed them hurried into one of the stores and exclaimed:

"My Gawd, Ed Houghton was elected supervisor only yesterday and he has started logging operations on the courthouse grounds already!"—Douglas Malloch in American Lumberman.

YOU CAN ENJOY HEALTH

CHIROPRACTIC.

To many people it may seem a far-fetched idea for the Chiropractor to confine his work to the spine alone when perhaps remote parts of the body are diseased. But let us remember that all parts of the body are supplied with Life giving Energy thru the perfect functioning of the Nervous system.

Pressure on nerves at the point where they leave the Spine reduces the amount of Life giving Energy to the parts affected, resulting in disease. This pressure the Chiropractor removes by Spinal Adjustments.

GOLF COURSE TO COST $25,000

AN IDEAL SITE. MEMBERSHIP NOW INVITED.

Mr. Herbert W. Wolff, vice-president of the American Car & Foundry Company arrived from Chicago Sunday and spent the week-end at his summer home at Lake Margrethe. He brought with him Mr. Thomas Bendlow, expert golf course architect, to look over the proposed course of Grayling. Mr. Bendlow very carefully inspected our proposed course Sunday afternoon and has pronounced it ideal. In fact, in his opinion can be developed into one of the finest, if not the finest course in Michigan. Mr. Bendlow is an expert on the laying out of golf courses and has, up to the present writing, constructed over eight hundred courses in the United States. He estimates the cost of the course complete at twenty five thousand dollars ($25,000.00), and the plan of organization, at the present time which is now under consideration, is to incorporate under the name of the "Grayling Golf Club" and to sell two hundred and fifty shares at one hundred dollars per share. These shares will carry with them yearly dues amounting to twenty five dollars. Approximately, one-half of the stock has been pledged, but before starting actual work on the course the plan is to dispose of all of the stock and get it all pledged before the work starts.

Anyone desiring to make application for membership, at this time, may do so by leaving their application with the Bank of Grayling, or with T. W. Hanson.

L. N. L. CONVENTION.

The 23rd Annual Convention of the Ladies National League Auxiliary to the National League of Veterans and Sons will convene September 23rd and 24th in Saginaw. With headquarters established at the Franklin Hotel on Franklin Avenue.

The National Executive Board and National Auditors will meet Monday Sept. 22nd at 2:30 p. m. at Hotel Franklin.

All meetings and Camp Fires will be held at Elks Temple. The first session of the convention will be called to order at 10:00 o'clock Wednesday Sept. 23rd by the National President Charlotte Jereau of Bay City.

Credentialed committees will be in the hall at 9:00 o'clock sharp. Afternoon session will be called promptly at 1:30.

Address of welcome will be from Camp Sherman No. 1 of Saginaw with Responses by National Life Member Nellie Barney of Camp McKinley Flint, Mich., followed by Initiatory work by Officers and Guards of Camp Sheridan No. 7 of Bay City. This will be followed by a Joint Memorial Service with the N. L. V. S. and L. N. L. work being done by the National officers, assisted by Guards of Sherman Camp No. 1 of Saginaw. Presentation of Banner to the Camp with highest gain by Junior Councillor Alice M. Knapp of Saginaw. An exhibition drill by the Guards of McKinley Camp No. 4 of Flint will then be given.

Tuesday evening 7:30 Camp Fire and general good time. Wednesday Morning at 10:00 o'clock Reports of Committees will be given; new business and election of officers will be held. Wednesday afternoon final officers. Let all who can, come to the convention and help our nation. Officers make this convention a success. We wish to thank the Grayling press for all favors extended.

SAYS BRISBANE

I attach more importance to one reader of a weekly newspaper, living in his own house, than to half a dozen readers of a different type crowded into the big cities. This is not because one American is better than another but because the man who reads the weekly has more time for thinking and thinks more.

Watch your dollars and you won't have to worry about your dime.

One of the follies of youth, from the standpoint of the old-timer, is just being young.

COUNTY CHILDREN SHARE IN XMAS FUND

GEORGE BURKE, GRAYLING'S LIVE WIRE CITIZEN TO HELP SANTA CLAUS PLEASE THE KIDDIES.

George Burke on the 6th day of September sent a Radio-Gram to the North Pole placing a large order for presents, candies, nuts and fruits with our old friend Santa Claus.

Some days ago Mr. Burke received a letter from Santa Claus stating that he enjoyed his trip to Grayling last Christmas so much that he desires to make the same trip this year and call on all the Kiddies to make their Christmas a happy one.

Mr. Burke sent the Radio-Gram in reply to Santa Claus' letter saying "That he would assist Santa Claus in visiting every home to see all the Kiddies and make them happy."

In order to make the trip a real success Mr. Burke will take one cent on every gallon of gasoline sold at The Burke Oil Co. station to every resident of Crawford county and lay it away into a Christmas purse to help pay for Crawford County's Kiddies Christmas.

To say the least Mr. Burke is a wide awake citizen and his thoughtfulness in assisting Santa Claus to give the Kiddies in the County a real Christmas deserves the good will of all the people of the County. We feel that in order to make the trip a huge success that every consumer of gasoline could help a good bit if they would buy a goodly portion of their gas at the Burke Oil Co. station.

Remember that one cent on every gallon sold goes into the Christmas fund for the Kiddies' pleasure. Let us all help do our bit from now until November 1st.—Adv.

FACTS CONCERNING MICHIGAN.

(By Ed. A. Nowack)

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 18.—Detroit, Michigan's metropolis, needs 100 additional policemen every year from now on. So says Frank Croul, police commissioner. The present force numbers 2,400, thus making the population of the Detroit police force larger than the population of one-third of Michigan's listed villages. Growth of Detroit, the increasing number on special detail, depletion of the force through sickness, resignations and murder, make the addition necessary. Detroit policemen are the highest paid in the United States. They receive $2,400 a year. Detroit today is the eighth city in the country in the number of policemen on a per capita basis. Philadelphia is first and other cities follow in this order: Boston, St. Louis, Chicago, New York, San Francisco, Cincinnati, Detroit.

One of the strangest thefts in the history of the sheriff's office in Michigan, is reported by J. W. Weiss, a farmer residing near Grayling. Thieves recently, during his absence, stole the roof from a pine barn on the old Abby Ellis farm, over which Mr. Weiss keeps watch. The thieves also stole half the roof from the house on the same place. The roofs were made of old fashioned pine lumber, which was as good the day it was stolen as it was when first placed on the buildings. It just happened that Mr. Weiss's matter found no aid at the hands of officers so he called on Editor O. P. Schumann of the Grayling Avalanche and inserted an ad. offering a reward for the capture of the thieves.

An up-state newspaper editor called at the Press room in the capitol the other day and left a little lesson in geography for the Lansing correspondents to ponder over. Here it is:

Friendship, N. Y.
Love, Va.
Kissimmee, Fla.
Ring, Ark.
Parson, Ky.
Reno, Nevada.

Muskegon has a pay-as-you-enter tourist camp and it is proving such a success that the prediction is made that Michigan soon will have all tourist camps on that basis emulating the example in western states. At the Muskegon camp one pays 50 cents for a day. The money is used in making improvements and providing strict regulation. The fee system, small as it is, also keeps out undesirable. The Muskegon camp furnishes a rest room, electric lights, cook stoves, telephone, sanitary conveniences and police protection.

State fire marshal announces that smokers' matches cause more fires than anything else. Spontaneous combustion comes second—produced usually by oil rags left where they may ignite. Defective flues and chimneys are third. Now is a good time to look them over before winter sets in. Electricity is fifth. Lightning is sixth with falling of sparks from chimneys as next. Hot ashes also are gaining in the number of fires they start. These usually are carelessly left by children.

Did you know that:
At the Grayling encampment the M. N. G. did considerable howitzer shooting at targets as far as five miles away.

During the Lansing conference of law enforcing officers last week statistics were quoted showing Tokyo, Japan has 12,000 heavily armed cops. High grade writing paper manufacturers in Michigan are complaining because of a lack of rags, so necessary to the trade.

A Fenton farmer boasts the oldest hen in Michigan. She is 13 years of age and still going strong on egg producing.

Complaint has been made to Secretary of State DeLand against the use of bathing girl stickers on auto windshields. He says it is legal.

Brook trout, despite increased breeding and planting efforts, are reported as gradually disappearing.

There are adequate state cost records for only two years back, due to the fact that in former years no definite record of state expense in the ultimate was kept.

Men always balk at the girl full of talk.

NO CONTAGION IN GRAYLING SCHOOLS

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE TO VISIT ALL SCHOOLS.

Both cases of scarlet fever are well now and no contact cases have developed. We hope there will be no more cases in town. If all parents are as prompt in reporting and as careful in observing quarantine as these, we think there will be very little communicable disease in Grayling this year. Everything in the houses has been aired and the houses scrubbed with soap and washing soda.

Fumigation is now recognized to be only a small part of the fight against communicable disease. Strong sunshine and fresh air are the best disinfectants. Formaldehyde fumes kill the germs on exposed surfaces, but do not get into dirt whether it is visible or invisible material, therefore it is necessary to scrub with soap and water even where things look clean. Germs do not like alkali, the U. S. Public Health department tell us, therefore dark brown soap and soda are the very best things for scrubbing. It may be hard on the hands but lemon juice or vinegar will counteract the effect on the hands if applied at once.

County Nurse Visiting Schools.
Mrs. Squires, county health nurse, has prepared an itinerary of her visits among the schools of the county for the months of September and October, which is as follows:

Funk school No. 6, Sept. 18.
Stickert school No. 3, Sept. 19.
Scott school No. 2, Sept. 22.
Williams school No. 4, Sept. 23.
Eldorado school No. 7, Sept. 25.
Lovells school No. 1, Sept. 26.
Kellogg school No. 2, Sept. 29.
Feldhauser school No. 4, Sept. 30.
Wakeley school No. 5, Oct. 2.
Standard school, Beaver Creek, No. 4, Oct. 3.
Love school No. 4, Oct. 5.
Maple Forest school No. 1, Oct. 6.

Parents living in these districts will find it interesting to attend these meetings and are cordially invited to be present.

Back Given Out?

It's hard to do one's work when every day brings morning lameness, throbbing backache and a dull, tired feeling. If you suffer thus, why not find out the cause? Likely it's your kidneys. Headaches, dizziness, and bladder irregularities may give further proof that your kidneys need help. Don't risk neglect of the Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Thousands have been helped by Doan's. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

CHAPTER XVIII—Continued

Later they came to earth and babbled the nonsense that is the highest wisdom of lovers. They built air castles and lived in them, seeing life through a poetic ambient as a long summer day in which they should ride and work and play together.

At last she remembered Lady Farquhar and began to laugh.

"We must go down and tell her at once, Jack."

He agreed. "Yes, let's go back and have it out. If you like, you may go to your room and I'll tackle her alone."

"I'd rather go with you."

He delighted in her answer.

Farquhar was taking an early morning stroll, arm in arm with Lady Jim, when he caught sight of them.

"Look, Jim!"

Both of the lovers knew how to walk. Lady Farquhar, watching them, thought she had never seen as fine a pair of untamed human beings.

In his step was the fine free swing of the hillman, and the young woman breathed the slope lightly as a faun.

The Englishman chuckled. "You're beaten, Di. The highwayman wins."

"Nonsense," she retorted sharply, but with anxiety manifest in her brow.

"Fact, just the same. He's coming to tell us he means to take our little girl to his robber den."

"I believe you'd actually let him," she said scornfully.

"Even you can't stop him. It's written in the books. Not sure I'd interfere if I could. For a middle-aged paragon with the gout I'm incurably romantic. It's the child's one great chance for happiness. But I wish to the deuce he wasn't a highgrader."

"She shan't sacrifice herself if I can prevent it," Lady Farquhar insisted stanchly.

"I'm member a girl who sacrificed herself for a line lieutenant without a shilling to call his own," he soliloquized aloud. "Would have him, and did, by Jove! Three deaths made him Lord Farquhar later, but she married the penniless subaltern."

"I've always been glad I did," she squeezed his arm fondly. "But this is different, James."

Kilmenny and Moya stopped. The young man doffed his gray felt hat and bowed.

"Mornin', Lady Farquhar—Lord Farquhar. V'e've come to ask your permission for our marriage."

"Mornin', rebels. Fancy I have to refuse it," cut back Farquhar, eyes twinkling. For this bold directness pleased and amused him.

"That would distress us extremely," answered Kilmenny with a genial smile.

"But would not affect your plans. I understand you to mean."

"You catch the idea exactly, sir."

Lady Farquhar entered the conversation. "Are you planning to go to prison with him, Moya, when he is convicted of highgrading?" she asked pleasantly.

Moya told in three sentences of what her lover had done. The Englishman wrung Kilmenny's hand cordially.

"By Jove, you reform thoroughly when you go about it. Don't think I'd have enjoyed writing that check for Miss Joyce. Leaves you strapped, does it?"

"Dead broke," came the very cheerful reply.

"But of course Moya has some money," said Lady Farquhar quietly.

The westerner winced. "Wish she hadn't. It's the only thing I have to forgive her."

Farquhar lifted his eyebrows. "Di," he remonstrated.

His wife came to time with a frank apology. "That was downright nasty of me, Mr. Kilmenny. I withdraw it. None the less, I think Moya would be throwing herself away. Do you realize what you are proposing? She's been used to the best ever since she was born. Have you the means to supply her needs? Or are you considering a Phyllida and Corydon idyll in a cottage?"

"It will have to be something of that sort at first. I've told her all this too, Lady Farquhar."

"What does that matter if we love each other?" Moya asked.

"You'll find it matters a good deal," said Lady Jim dryly. "When poverty comes in love is likely to wink out any day. Of course I realize that yours is of a quality quite unusual. It always is, my dear. Every lover has thought that since time began."

"We'll have to take our fighting chance of that," Jack replied.

Moya, her eyes shining, nodded agreement. No great gain can be won without risk. She knew there was a chance that she might not find happiness in her love. But where it called her she must follow—to a larger life certainly, to joy and to sorrow, to the fuller experiences that must come to every woman who fulfills her destiny.

The memories of both Moya and Lord Farquhar went back, as it were, in a bound, to a certain night some months before, when Farquhar, as Moya's guardian, had talked to the girl seriously on the subject of her apparently growing regard for the romantic "highwayman," Jack Kilmenny.

It was a still night, save only for the rushing waters of the river. The lamps of the sky had all been lit and were gleaming coldly millions of miles away. The shadowed moonlight in the trees offered a stage set to lowered lights.

The thoughts of the girl had drifted to speculation about the transplanted countryman of hers whose personality had come to interest her so greatly. He had challenged her trust in him and she had responded with a pledge. He had not explained a single one of the suspicious circumstances against him. He had not taken her into his confidence, nor had he in so many words declared his innocence. She was glad he had told her nothing, had demanded her faith as a matter of course. It was part of her pride in him that she could believe without evidence. All the world would know he was not guilty after he had shown his proofs. It would be no test of friendship to stand by him then.

A step sounded on the gravel behind her and an arm opened to let her hand slip round the elbow.

"May I stroll out this dance with you, Miss Dwight?" Lord Farquhar asked formally, dropping into step with her.

Moya and her guardian were kindred spirits. They never needed to explain themselves to each other. Both knew how to make-believe.

"If you're not afraid of a scandal at being alone with me so far from a chaperon," the girl answered lightly.

He burst out a sigh. "I'm only afraid there won't be any. It's the penalty of age, my dear. I can claim all sorts of privileges without making Verinder jealous."

"Oh, Verinder," she scoffed.

"Should I have said Kilmenny?" he asked.

"I'll tell you a secret, guardy," whispered Moya gayly. "You're a hundred years younger than either of them."

"I wish my glass told me so."

"Fiddledicks! Youth is in the heart. Mr. Verinder has never been young and Captain Kilmenny has forgotten how to be."

"I fancy Ned would be willing to learn how again if he had the proper teacher."

She gave his arm a little squeeze. "You dear old matchmaker."

"Heaven forbid! I'm merely inquiring, my dear."

"Oh, I see you in loco-parentis duty."

"Exactly. So it isn't going to be Ned?"

She looked across the turbid moonlit river before she answered. "I don't think so."

"Nor Verinder?"

"Goodness, no! A little ripple of laughter flowed from her lips before she added: "He's changed his mind. It's Joyce he wants now."

Farquhar selected a cigar from the case. "Hm! Sure you didn't change it for him?"

A dimple flashed into her cheeks. "I may have helped a little, but not half as much as Joyce."

"That young woman is a born flirt!" Lord Farquhar announced, his beard and the lower part of his face in the sudden glow of the lighted match.

"Upon my word, I saw her making eyes at your highwayman the night we met him here."

There was a moment's silence before she answered. "Anybody could see that he was interested in her."

"It doesn't matter to me who interests him, but I can't have any of my wards being romantic over a Dick Turpin," he replied lightly.

She was standing in the shadow, so that he could not see the dye sweep into her cheeks.

"I'm afraid he is going to disappoint you. He's not a highwayman at all."

"Did he tell you so?"

"Yes, but I know it."

"Looks to me as if he might make a good one. The fellow is cool as a cucumber and afraid of nothing on two legs or four."

"You forget he is India's cousin."

"No, I'm remembering that. His father had a devil of a temper and his mother was as wild as an unbroken colt when I met her."

"They weren't thieves, were they?" she dashed.

He gave her his frank smile. "You like this young man, Moya?"

"Yes. Why shouldn't I?"

"What not—if you don't like him too well?"

"So that's why you came out here—sent by Lady Farquhar to scold me—and I thought you had come because you like to be with me."

"Come; let us reason together," he invited cheerfully. "We'll sit on the end of the wharf and dangle our legs while your guardian flashes his cigar, and does his duty by you."

Lord Farquhar seemed in no hurry to begin, nor did Moya attempt to hasten him. His cigar glowed and ashed and glowed again before he spoke.

"Odd how things work out, my dear. There across the river are two men who would like to marry you. Both are good matches. One is by way of being a bit of a bounder perhaps, but the other is as fine a fellow as any girl could look for—not brilliant, but no fool either, and as steady as a clock."

A breath of wind lifted the edge of her white skirt. She followed the woman's instinct to tuck it safely under her before making demure answer.

"Captain Kilmenny is his own certificate of merit. Any praise is surplusage."

He shrugged. "That's the perversity of it. You see all his merits and they don't touch you."

With a vivacious little turn that was wholly charming she turned merrily upon him. "Are you by any chance proposing for him, Lord Farquhar?"

"Haven't he proposed for himself?" her guardian asked bluntly.

"I believe he has."

"And you—didn't see it?"

"I couldn't."

"Sorry." He looked at the tip of his cigar and brushed away the ash. "Because he's a no end good sort."

"You don't know that any better than I do. Don't think I can't see all the advantages of it. I do. I want to say 'Yes,' but—well, I can't. That's all."

"On account of the other man?" he questioned gently.

"I haven't mentioned any other man," she cried, her face in a flame.

"No, I mentioned him. Devilish kind of me. If you want to take it in that way, Moya. But then, as you say, I'm in loco. Got to grub around and find out how you feel."

"If you mean Mr. Kilmenny, there hasn't been a word between us you couldn't have heard yourself," the girl told him stiffly.

"If my memory serves, it didn't use to be so much a matter of words. What about your feelings? Di fancies—"

"Of course she does. She's always fancying. That's the business of a chaperon. It's perfectly absurd," Moya flung back hotly.

"Glad you see it that way. It wouldn't do, of course."

"Any number of reasons why it wouldn't. Marriage nowadays isn't entirely a matter of sentiment. You're an Englishwoman. He's an American, and will be to the end of the chapter."

"I'm not English; I'm Irish—and the Irish make the best Americans," she told him sturdily.

Farquhar ignored her protest. "His ways of thinking are foreign to yours, so are his habits of life. You're a delightful rebel, my dear, but you've got to come to heel in the end. All girls do. It's a rule of the game, and you'll have to accept it. No matter how captivating your highwayman may be—and upon my word I admire him tremendously—he is not your kind. He makes his own laws, and yours are made for you."

"You're making one for me now, aren't you?" she demanded rebelliously. "Why shouldn't I listen to him? You tell me he doesn't have the same little conventions as we do. Thank heaven he hasn't. His mind is free. If that condemns him—"

She broke off from sheer passionate inadequacy to express herself.

"Those conventions are a part of your life, little girl. Can you imagine yourself sitting opposite him at breakfast for the rest of your natural days?"

"You mean because he is a working-man, I suppose."

"If you like. You would miss all the things to which you were used. Love in a cottage isn't practicable for young women brought up as you have been."

"Then I've been brought up wrong. If I were fond enough of the man—but that's absurd. We're discussing an impossible case. I'll just say this, though. I've never met a man who would be as little likely to bore one. Give me my great moments, even if I have to pay for them."

He understood perfectly her eager desire for the best life he had to offer.

What he was proposing for her was a tame second best. But it was safe, and the first rule of the modern marriage mart is to play the game safe.

Yet he had a boyish errand impulse to tell her he cut loose and win happiness if she could. What restrained him, in addition to what he owed Lady Jim in the matter, was his doubt as to this young man's character.

"Well, I daresay I've exaggerated the whole matter, my dear. I was just to give you a hint—no more."

"You've done it, then."

"Strikes me that I've done my duty in the matter."

"You have—admirably," she scoffed.

An easy-going man, he did not cross bridges till he came to them. His wife had persuaded him that Moya needed a walking to, but he was glad to be through with it.

"Hang the scamp, anyhow!" he laughed. "Maybe he'll break his neck on one of those outlaw bronchos he's so fond of riding. Maybe they'll put him safely away in prison, where there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage."

"It's even possible," she added with a murmur of half-embarrassed laughter, "that if he honored one with an offer—which it has never entered his head to do—one might regretfully decline with thanks."

"Amen! In the meantime God lead your grace by the hand, as old Bacon says." He brought his heels together, bowed over her fingers, and kissed them with exaggerated old-fashioned gallantry.

"Who's being romantic now?" she wanted to know gayly.

A voiced halled Jack. Colter was hurrying up the street, plainly excited. Kilmenny moved a few steps toward him.

Lady Jim took advantage of his absence to attack Moya from another angle. "My dear, I wish I could show you how much depends on a similarity of tastes, or habits, or standards. Matrimony means more than love. It means adjustment."

"I've thought of that too. But when you love enough that doesn't help the adjustment?" asked the girl naively.

She has appealed to Farquhar. That gentleman came to her assistance. "It does."

"This isn't a matter to be decided merely by personal preference," urged the older woman. "There may be consequences."

The color beat into the face of the young woman in a wave, but her eyes held steadily to those of Lady Farquhar.

"I . . . hope so."

"Bravo, Moya!" applauded her guardian, clapping his hands softly.

"Don't you think they—the consequences—deserve a better chance than you will give them?"

"I'll answer that, Di," spoke up Farquhar. "When a girl chooses for the father of her children a man who is clean and strong and virile, and on top of that her lover, she is giving them the best possible chance in life."

Moya's gratitude shone through the eyes that met those of her guardian.

Kilmenny swung back to the group he had left. "I've good news, friends. This is my lucky day. You remember that when I was rescued from the Golden Nugget my pockets were full of ore samples I had picked up as I was tunneling."

"Yes . . . picked them up while you were delirious, didn't you?" Farquhar replied.

"Must have, I reckon. Well, you know how miners are always having pieces of quartz assayed. Colter took these to the man we employ. He's just learned that it is high-grade stuff."

"You've made a strike!"

"Looks like it. Colter wasn't taking any chances, anyhow. He hiked right around to the owners of the mine and signed up a five-year lease in his name and mine."

Farquhar shook hands with him cordially. "Hope you make a fortune, Kilmenny."

Moya's chaperon, facing the inevitable, capitulated as gracefully as she could. After all, the girl might have done worse. The man she had chosen was well born, good looking, forceful and a leader in his community. If this fortunate strike was going to leave him well off, clearly she must make the best of him.

"You're a lucky man. I hope you know you don't deserve a girl like Moya," she told him as she shook hands.

"I know it, all right. Can you tell me who does?" he flung back, with a gay insouciant smile.

At that moment Ned Kilmenny stepped out upon the hotel porch. Lady Jim nodded toward him.

"Perhaps," his cousin conceded. "But in this little old world a man doesn't get what he deserves."

"I see he doesn't. Ned is a better man than you."

"Yes," he admitted.

Captain Kilmenny, coming down the porch steps, saw in a flash what had happened. He came forward with the even stride and impassive face that seldom deserted him. In two sentences Lady Farquhar told him the facts.

"You lucky dog," he said to his cousin as their hands gripped.

Jack had never liked him better than in this moment when he was giving up so cheerfully the thing he wanted most in the world.

"It isn't always the best man that wins, captain. I take off my hat to the better men who have tried and failed. Perhaps it may be a comfort to them to know that I'm the man that needs her most."

The captain turned to Moya. "So you've found that good hunting already," he said to her in a low voice.

"Yes, I think I have . . . I'm sure of it, Ned." Her eyes were full of tender sympathy for him. She wished she could tell him how much she admired his fine spirit.

"God keep you happy," he said wistfully.

Jack joined them and clapped Moya's arm into his. "Amen to that, captain. And since Jack Kilmenny has been appointed deputy on the job I'm going to see your wish comes true."

Moya looked at her lover and smiled.

PERSONAL LIABILITY—WHY NOT?

A Greenburg, La. paper reports that in an endeavor to burn the carcass of a deer, which they had shot illegally, two hunters started a brush fire in a national forest last fall which escaped their control. It was necessary for the government to call out a large crew of men in order to extinguish the fire. As it was, 2,000 acres of forest land was blackened before the fire was put out.

The two hunters were subsequently haled into court and ordered to pay the United States government the sum of $2,500 the cost of controlling the fire which had been started by their own negligence.

This is a significant decision and adds strength to the legal precedent for personal liability for fire carelessly started. It will undoubtedly stimulate a wholesome public respect for forest protection, and the scope of the decision should be extended to include fire damage caused by carelessness to other classes of property.

The practice of team-work, co-operation, concerted effort, or whatever it may be called, cannot be emphasized too vigorously in fire prevention. At the same time, individual responsibility and the sinister shadow of personal liability will do much to "stay the careless hand."

IS IT FAIR?

If any securities were to be tax-free, it should be those of productive industry. What the world needs is more and more investors to put their factories, railroads, public utilities, anything that will make payrolls and support homes. A dollar spent for a local packing plant or mill is worth several times as much as the average dollar spent for civic luxury. It should be encouraged to get into life and justify its own right to live.

We should have highways and the other improvements that make community living worth while. But under present laws income from money invested in city, county, state and federal securities is exempted from taxation, thus actually inviting and encouraging the investor to buy such securities rather than embark in industry which permanently employs labor. The tax-exemption plan is fundamental wrong, but if it is to be continued it should include securities of industries that need lower taxes and encouragement in order to operate and maintain payrolls.

Present tax-exemption is a heavy burden on all business, which must pay double taxes in order that favored tax-free securities escape.

LOSE SERIES TO POSTUM CEREALS

SUNDAY'S GAME HARD ONE TO LOSE.

Grayling base ball team lost two games Saturday and Sunday to the fast Postum Cereal team of Battle Creek.

McMillan, former Chicago White Sox pitcher was on the mound for the Cereals, Saturday and was in rare form, holding the local team to a single hit in nine innings. With two out in the final inning, Wilfred Laurent singled thru short for the only hit off of McMillan. "Babe" Laurent twirled for Grayling and was found for 11 hits, including 3 triples and a home run. Errors also figured in the run making of the Postum team.

Score by innings:

McMillan and Godde.

B. Laurent and E. Johnson.

Sunday's game was one of the best games played on the home grounds this season.

"Lefty" McDonald, star twirler for the Cereals pitched a fine game and seemed to be favored with all the breaks of the game. He was opposed by "Johnny" Johnson, our star pitcher. Johnny pitched a wonderful game and deserved to win for he held the hard hitting Postum team to 8 scattered hits and struck out nine men. He lost the game through errors.

"Babe" Laurent was the hitting star of Sunday's game with three singles and a double.

BALL TEAM TOOK HONORS AT FAIR

NELSON'S HOME RUN BROUGHT CROWD TO FEET.

Grayling won from Onaway at the Otsego County fair at Gaylord yesterday in a hard fought pitching battle between "Johnny" Johnson and "Bullet" Matuzak. The pitching honors were about even for Johnson allowed five hits and struck out eleven men, while Matuzak allowed three hits and struck out ten men, however "Johnny" deserves a lot of credit, for he pitched seven innings with a crippled finger and had the misfortune of badly hurting an ankle in the sixth inning.

Onaway conceded that they could not defeat Grayling with their regular home team and employed three outside players to help them—Matuzak of the Mint league; Malloy and Burnette.

Onaway was first to score, getting a marker in the first inning. Mallie walked to start it; Van Dusen sacrificed; Johnson to Milnes; Malloy struck out; Warner singled to right scoring Mallie. Pierce ended the inning by grounding out to Reynolds.

Grayling scored their runs in the sixth. C. Johnson hit to right, but Martins remembering the one "Johnny" hit in Onaway, was playing deep for him. E. Johnson singled to center. Doris sacrificed him to second. Otto Nelson picked one out his liking and hit for four sacks. Reynolds was out in the usual manner.

Both teams played good ball but error being made in the whole game, and that did not figure in the scoring. "Farmer" Hatch of Alpena umpired the game and certainly deserves a lot of credit for manner in which he handled it.

Battery for Grayling, C. Johnson and E. Johnson. For Onaway, Matuzak and Warner.

DANISH MINISTERS HELD FALL MEETING IN GRAYLING.

"Kresmode", a convention of ministers of the Danish-Lutheran church of this district, which is held twice a year in the spring and fall, was held this fall in Grayling. There were four pastors present together with a number of visitors from Detroit, Manistee, Ludington, Grant and Marquette, there being about 30 out-of-town guests in all.

The days chosen were last Sunday and Monday, and the meeting began Sunday morning with services in the Danish church at the usual hour.

Rev. P. H. Peterson of Muskegon had charge of the services. In the afternoon a meeting was called for 3:00 at Danebod hall and the congregation in general were invited. At this time, Rev. Nielsen of Grant presided, and matters pertaining to the church paper, a publication of the Danish-Lutheran churches of America was discussed, until 5:30 o'clock when lunch was served in the dining room.

A Lutheran pastor, tastefully arranged together with pink and white crepe paper streamers, made the dining room very attractive, and lunch tables were adorned with bouquets of assorted flowers. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies of the congregation.

After lunch all gathered in the assembly room, where they were treated to a lecture by Rev. Faunholt of Manistee. To add to the evening's pleasure, Miss Dagny Hanson of Manistee rendered a number of selections on the piano, and the meeting was closed by all joining in singing a Danish song.

The following morning, Monday, the pastors together with Rev. Kjolhede met at Danebod hall at 9:00 for their business meeting.

At noon the out-of-town guests and the church board and their wives or husbands were guests of Mr. and Rasmus Hanson at dinner. The ladies were escorted to Lake Margrethe where they partook of a lovely dinner at the Hanson dining hall with Mrs. Hanson as hostess, while Mr. Hanson took the gentlemen of the party to Shoppenaggon Inn. After dinner the ladies joined the ladies at the lake and all were taken on a sight seeing trip over the Hanson state reservation grounds and then down along the AuSable river. This feature was greatly enjoyed and Mr. and Mrs. Hanson were voted very fine entertainers.

A service at the church on Monday evening closed the convention, which those in attendance said had been one of the most pleasant and interesting meetings they had attended in some time. Grayling long ago gained a name for itself for its good will and hospitality to visitors.

JUDSON A. WILCOX.

Judson A. Wilcox, son of the late A. C. Wilcox died at his home in Saginaw Friday, September 12th at 11:00 a. m., after being ill for more than a year. The remains were brot to Grayling for burial in the old family lot in Elmwood cemetery. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon with services at Danebod hall, conducted by Rev. J. Herman Baughn.

The deceased was born in Wixom, Oakland county, Michigan in the year 1877 and it was shortly after his birth that his parents came to Grayling to reside. He was 46 years, 11 months and 23 days old at the time of his death.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Carrie Wilcox, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Proebe Johnson of Grand Rapids, and three brothers—Burt S., George A. and Charles W. Wilcox.

DRUGS

Rainy fall days usually mean more or less illness. This is specially so for colds. If it is your Doctor's prescription or one of the many preparatory remedies that is required, the best qualities are essential. Keeping the store always supplied with the proper varieties of drugs, such as a high class physician may require, has always been our constant aim.

Pure drugs, expert compounding and quick and cheerful service are what our customers receive daily.

Carl Miller, a nephew of C. B. Oliverius, had a narrow escape from drowning last Sunday in what is known as Mud creek, on the old river road that was formerly used for down river travel. He had taken Christ Olsen's horse out for a little jog and as he was crossing the old bridge over Mud creek it broke thru and Mr. Miller and the horse sank into the mud. Mr. Miller, in the mud up to his neck, struggled fifteen minutes before he was able to extricate himself, and did so by catching hold of a branch from a nearby tree. He was unable to get the horse out and so went to the Murray summer home for help, but it was impossible to get the animal out. Finally word was sent to town for a team of horses, and the horse was landed to safety little the worse for his experience.

One-man street cars with a five-cent fare won in the election over two-man cars and a seven-cent fare at Port Huron. The vote came as a result of a controversy between the city council and the Port Huron city railway system which was tied up.

Leon Cramer, 37 years old, of Charlotte, was killed instantly when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a west bound Michigan Central train at a street crossing here.

Jerusalem.—The stubborn conservatism of the Mohammedan custom with regard to the social isolation of the women in Palestine may soon give way before the movement launched by Arab feminists for removing the veil. The Holy land, backward in many respects, is behind such Moslem countries as Turkey and Egypt in breaking the shackles holding women in seclusion.

The movement for the enfranchisement of Moslem women in Palestine is of recent origin and is traceable to the influx of people from the West, especially Jewish immigrants coming to settle in their national home. As the first step toward their emancipation the women demand ecclesiastical sanction for the removal of the black veil from their faces. If such a policy in the face of age-long custom does not win official approval, some of the leading Arab women are determined to do what their Moslem leaders forbid.

Atlantic Hurricane Hits Liner Arabic

Explorers Find Race of Gigantic Indians

Huge seven-foot Indians, dominated by half-mad fanatic witch-doctors, were discovered on the Gougaro peninsula, South America, by the Capt. Marshall Field Expedition of the Field Museum of Natural History of Chicago. After weeks of elaborate preparations and visits by a native guide, the expedition waited outside the camp three hours before gifts of knives, straw hats, beads and shiny objects won the confidence and good will of these headhunters. The women of the tribe refused to pose for a photograph.

Makes His Secretary His Wife

Hoke Smith, sixty-nine, former United States senator, governor of Georgia and secretary of the Interior in Cleveland's cabinet, was married the other day in Pelham Manor, N. Y., to Miss Mazie Crawford, twenty-eight, who has been his secretary for the last six years. This photograph was taken as they were sailing for Boston on their honeymoon. They will reside in Washington.

Two Prize Beauties of England

Because some one said modern sports in England were producing a race of women "ugly in appearance," the London Daily Mirror started a beauty contest last April. The results are just announced. Miss Barbara Kitty Dolge of Plymouth (left) won first prize of $2,500, and Miss Violet Hunter of Southampton (right) won second prize of $1,250.

THERE'S MONEY IN MILLINERY

ALMOST any "Main Street" girl can make money, if she has the millinery magic in her fingers. And almost any "Main Street" offers as a market a whole town full of women with the "hat habit." That's how a village milliner who freshened my own hat almost past recognition, after I had been caught in a thunder shower while passing through her town, put it. The "hat habit," it seems, is a craze for new chapeaux, whether needed or not, to the tune of two or three a season.

"Small town women are just as enthusiastic about having fresh millinery, in new models, every few months, as city women are," she declared. "I make over their old hats, or give them new creations, just as they like."

Although millinery used to be as seasonal as the coal business, and had its one high peak in the spring season, when the rush for the annual "Easter bonnet" was on, it is now an all-the-year-round proposition. It may be started on small capital and may be profitably carried on in any community where there are a number of women who care about the quality and beauty of their headgear. The milliner's initial success depends on her skill, and the neatness and quality of her work. The questions of location, pretentiousness of business quarters and size of stock are secondary ones at the start.

Even for the girl who has a decided knack for making hats, a course in millinery or an apprenticeship in a city shop are valuable training, almost indispensable to her success when she is in business for herself. But such training is inexpensive, and the profits of a successful milliner are large. The prospective hat maker should learn how to design, make and trim hats of all kinds for every reason and every purpose, for women and children of all ages. She can start her shop on a small scale right in her own home, or in one small room in a downtown store. For only a little money she can equip herself with an attractive assortment of various samples and materials in the popular shades. She should buy her materials in small quantities, at first, only as she requires them for special orders. Later, she will, of course, save money by buying wholesale. Newspaper advertising, and personal communication, by letter, telephone or personal call, are the best means by which the milliner can get customers.

RUNNING A WOMAN'S EXCHANGE

"YOU'LL never get rich," perhaps someone remarks, "running a woman's exchange."

Now, it is quite true that the small-town girl who organizes such an agency won't "get rich." Neither, in all probability, will the woman who markets her wares there. And yet, one girl, who did start just such an organization, is enthusiastic in her praise of the nationally-known institution, which, as she says, "assists without demoralizing"—the woman's exchange.

"The woman's exchange has helped thousands to become self-supporting," she says. "As for the proprietress, she not only makes a living at the work, but feels that she has a worthwhile job."

The most remarkable thing about the woman's exchange is that it has succeeded in so standardizing the home woman's output that it is certain to be as perfect as a factory product. It has overcome her too intense individualism and taught her to use that scientific care which will mean uniform high quality. The proprietress should never, therefore, through mistaken charity, accept work that is poorly executed, or inferior material or out-of-date. To do so will but lead to disappointment all around.

Possibly she can get the co-operation of existing organizations or business houses and persuade them to donate space for the project in return for the advertising and good will it would bring them. The "Y" rooms, or the rest room established for out-of-town women might be available. She might run the exchange on this basis: payment of one dollar to entitle a woman to place work on sale for six months, with the deduction of twenty per cent commission from the selling price of all fancy work. The charge for selling other goods could be arranged before hand in each case. Consignors should be permitted to withdraw all goods at any time; but to do so should mean that they would forfeit their membership unless they preferred to pay twenty per cent on all goods removed. Of course, these fees and commissions may vary to meet local conditions. The consignee should be presented with a statement acknowledging receipt of the goods, and the receipt would have to be presented by her if she asked for the return of her wares. A good ruling is that articles may not be removed during the month of December.

The rules vary; but whenever serving women is as important as earning wages—try running a Woman's Exchange.

Good Definitions

Genius is talent set on fire by courage. Fidelity is simply firing to be true in small things as well as great. Courage is the standing army of the soul which keeps it from conquest, pillage and slavery.—Henry Van Dyke.

Wind and Waves

Contrary to popular belief, the wind's effect on waves is comparatively slight. It has been proven that the fiercest gale has no influence on the water below a depth of 50 feet.

15 New Studebakers

Including an entirely new type of car—the DUPLEX-PHAETON

Today Studebaker has made Automobile History and established standards of value and quality more fully and obviously than ever before.

TODAY Studebaker proves that beautiful, distinctive, stylish body lines can be originated by American body designers without following precedent or imitating or adapting what has been done before.

Today Studebaker proves that a practical and beautiful type of car can be made to combine the pleasure and performance of the open car and the comfort and protection of the closed car—and this without excessive price or compromised quality—a car "duplex" in open-car smartness and convenience and closed-car elegance and comfort—and at a price no higher than that of an open car!

Today Studebaker proves, in its new Standard Six Duplex model, that a six-cylinder car of fine quality, great power, plenty of room and impressive appearance can be made and marketed at a price of $1145.

Today Studebaker proves in its new Special Six and its Big Six Duplex models that the ultimate in all the essential features of quality in five- and seven-passenger cars can be made and marketed at a price of $1495 and $1875 respectively.

And this is possible only because Studebaker cars are made in one of the most comprehensive industrial plants in this country, 70 per cent of which is new within the last six years.

Every modern method of manufacture and long experienced management are available for the production of Studebaker automobiles.

Today Studebaker proves that the highest grade closed car bodies—framed in selected hard woods, cushioned with the best cushion work, upholstered in fine mohair fabrics and fitted with expensive appointments—can be made and marketed on superlatively good chassis at moderate prices.

This is made possible by the new $10,000,000 Studebaker closed body plants. Studebaker designs and builds all of its closed bodies in one of the best equipped and most modern body plants in the industry.

The Three New Chassis

THE STUDEBAKER STANDARD SIX—113 in. wheelbase, 5-passenger. Engine, 3½x4½, 50 b.h.p.—with 6 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Duplex-Roadster, Coupe-Roadster, Coupe, Sedan, and Berline.

THE STUDEBAKER SPECIAL SIX—120 in. wheelbase, 5-passenger. Engine, 3½x5, 65 b.h.p.—with 5 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Duplex-Roadster, Victoria, Sedan, and Berline.

THE STUDEBAKER BIG SIX—127 in. wheelbase, 7-passenger. Engine, 3½x5, 75 b.h.p.—with 4 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Coupe, Sedan, and Berline.

The Ten New Closed Bodies

COMPLETELY NEW BODIES—each car a masterly expression of modern style, yet distinctly

Three completely new chassis!... 15 completely new bodies!

Completely new lines!... Marvelous new performance

Completely new open-closed car!

Completely new radiators, new fenders, new lamps, new seating comfort, new finish, new colors in lacquer finish, three improved engines

Real balloon tires, not low-pressure cords. Sizes—21"x 5.25" to 20"x 7.30".

New Studebaker automatic hydraulic 4-wheel brakes—optional.

New values, never before equaled—even by Studebaker!

original in beautiful lines—individual, conservative, impressively elegant, but crisp enough in its departure from imitation to be entirely distinctive.

The Five New Duplex Bodies

(A new type of car originated by Studebaker to take the place of the open car)

SO ENTIRELY NEW and so different from any other body ever made before that a new name had to be created—the DUPLEX.

The upper structure is shaped in pressed steel and covered with the finest water-proof fabric. The steel construction permits the use of another radical Studebaker creation, the new roller enclosing curtains. There is the permanent beauty and durability of the steel top plus the instant convenience of the roller curtains.

Thus Studebaker engineers have solved the open-closed car problem.

The buyer who wants the airiness and practical convenience of the open car and who also wants the comfort, protection and beauty of the closed car can now get both in one car and at the price of an open car.

One moment the new Studebaker Duplex is a beautiful open car—a touch of the hand to the overlapping roller curtains and it is a snug weather-tight closed car.

Balloon Tires

Genuine and full size balloon tires on all models. Every part that functions with the tires has been specially designed for balloon tire equipment—steering gear, steering knuckles, spindles and springs, even the fenders.

New Lacquer Finish

The Standard Six closed bodies are beautifully finished in semi-gloss, satin lacquer. The hood and lower panels are in light gray, the upper panels in darker gray. Hairline parallel striping in oriental red. Burnished nickel radiators, jet black fenders, light golden finished, natural wood wheels and big balloon tires are contrasting touches.

The Standard Duplex Models are finished in glossy jet enamel—lasting, lustrous and wear-resisting.

The Special Six and the Big Six Duplex models are in soft satin lacquer with dark blue hoods and bodies striped in light blue and ivory. Here, too, the sparkle is added with burnished nickel radiators and light, natural wood wheels in contrast with jet black fenders and big, black balloon tires.

More Power

The universally famous Studebaker engine is more than ever a peer among power plants. The crankshaft is heavier. ALL surfaces are perfectly machined to exact dimensions and balance. The bearings are larger.

The engine is in unit with the clutch and transmission. There is a force feed lubrication system with clean, strained oil always in reserve. There are many changes and improvements which result in MORE POWER, MORE QUIETNESS and STILL BETTER PERFORMANCE in every way.

New Brakes

Larger, more powerful, simpler and much easier operated two-wheel brakes. An entirely new emergency brake is operated from the instrument board, instantly convenient to the driver's hand where it simplifies the control and frees the floor board from the old style lever. It acts on the propeller shaft. There is uniform pressure at each wheel—equalized through the rear axle.

The regular two-wheel Studebaker brakes with their simplicity, safety and great braking power are entirely adequate.

But Studebaker 4-Wheel Hydraulic Brakes (with disc wheels) can be furnished as optional equipment on all models at extra charge if desired.

Studebaker 4-Wheel Brakes have three exclusive features not found on any other system in this country.

1. Braking pressure is furnished by hydraulic power automatically developed. A light touch to the braking pedal controls its great force like a touch to the throttle controls the power of the engine. This feature will appeal instantly to women.

2. The front wheels cannot lock.

3. There are only two adjustments required—one at each rear wheel. The front brakes are permanently adjusted at the factory. The oil in the transmission is used to generate the hydraulic power; the action of the gears and the pump keep it in circulation; it cannot congeal or freeze. Braking power is always instantly ready—in winter as well as in summer!

New Ease of Operation

New Ease of Gear Shifting—New power in braking, a touch to the pedal exerts a giant's strength at the rear wheels. New clutch action, soft as velvet—A new steering gear and steering knuckles designed for balloon tires—A new grouping on the dash, including ALL the usual instruments plus a gasoline gauge that always works accurately.

Lighting Control Switches—all on the steering wheel—instantly handy. Automatic Spark Control—No manual attention required, so the lever is eliminated. Automatically governed to all speeds with the precision of machinery.

And the Details

The new cars are longer and lower to the ground. The line from the radiator to the rear is nearly straight. The wheelbase of all models is increased.

The fenders are much wider and deeper crowned to cover the width of the tires. They fit more closely over the wheels. The rear fenders are long and gracefully curved into the running boards.

The radiators are high and set low in the frames and convex curved just below the filler cap. The design is strikingly original and beautifully distinctive.

Entirely new head lamps and cowl parking lamps designed by Studebaker—artistically appropriate and in perfect keeping with the originality of the body and fender design.

Deeper, stiffer frames, more cross members; shorter, flatter springs for balloon tires. All bodies lower, all roomier, better and more comfortably cushioned. Seats are lower, backs and sides are higher.

Look Forward Into Next Year

The new Studebaker is here today! And no matter how sweeping your ideas of what a new model should be this car will satisfy you. It will thrill you with the very newness and originality of its beautiful lines!

You may not be in the market now, or even this year. But to see the new Studebaker is to look forward into next year—and the year after! SEE IT TODAY!
